

All Along The Great Divide

G C G
1) Well, you get up in the morning, shake the dew off of your mind,
C D
As the sun pours like honey through the ponderosa pine
C D G Em
You're livin' every moment as if you've just arrived,
C D G CG
Because you know what it means to be alive.

G C G
2) The crystal morning is broken with a cooin' of a dove
C D
As you head on up the trail to the highlands up above
C D G Em
Where the colors of the rainbow, are the flowers at your feet,
C D G CG
And your heart sings a song with every beat.

C D G C D G
Chorus: All along the Great Divide, Yes, we can understand,
C D G C D G
What it means to be alive, All along the Great Divide.

3) You tramp across the ridgeline as the world spreads down below,
And you're feeling like a king, just a-hoardin' o'er his gold,
You think that if you take another breath you'll just explode
And you feel the choir a-singin' in your soul.
(Repeat Chorus)

4) The hawk on the wing cries her warning from the sky,
Still you find yourself a-starrin' into a grizzly's lonesome eyes,
As she turns away in boredom, you're frozen by her size,
And you know what it means to be alive.
(Repeat Chorus)
